Dear Dave, 8/29/97

As assassination insanities go, that one from Orange county schools is tops!

I do not recall knowing about a Civil War battle at Germantown but that could have involved Early on the way down from here. There are still Smallwoods in the area and if you said Libertytown I'd be able to pinpoint it for you. It is east of here on the road to Baltimore that today is the secondary road there. If you have a map, it is where State Roads 75 and 26 intersect, noth of where we used to live, at Hyattstown. Streat does not sound familiar but the presence of a tavern there does.

Thanks for the use to which you've put your computer! I can use the labels.

Germantown is much larger now. It is past Rockville going from Washington west. It should show on a map but if it does not, it is on State 27 south of State 355 and is also a bit south of I270 on 27.

I do not recall hearing of Middle Plantation.

Thanks and best,
